AEPC meeting psycho-social care from fetus to adult

The biannual meeting of the working group will take place in Cologne, Germany.

The Dep. of Paediatric Cardiology, University of Cologne, Faculty of Medicine, the Dep. of Psychology, University of Cologne, Faculty of Human Sciences, and the Inst. of Circulation Research and Sport Medicine, German Sport University Cologne invite you to participate in the biannual meeting of the AEPC working group (WVG) psycho-social care from fetus to adult.

The organizers of the meeting are in close co-operation in various fields of patient care - including the patient's families. Psycho-social care has a more and more important value for the long term results of surgery and intervention of congenital heart disease in children and young adults. The scientific profile and the international fields of co-operation of the AEPC WVG can be seen on their website:

Cologne is a city with a strong sense of identity and individuality. The Cologne people are proud of their city and they do like tourists. The Cologne museums are amongst the best and most renowned in Europe, the cathedral, various churches and other buildings throughout the city are virtually painted with history but there is also a growing modern architecture.

Welcome all of you to come to Cologne and contribute to the meeting
